The Most Critical...

Written by Deena Coster for the Taranaki Daily News

The next 12 months will be the most "critical" in the history of Hospice Taranaki, with its boss not ruling out cutbacks in community palliative care services as a way to stay financially afloat.

The charity's chief executive, Paul Lamb, welcomed the recently announced $3.1 million funding boost from central government for hospice care across Aotearoa. But with the money to be shared across 27 hospice providers, Lamb did not expect much of the money to be tagged to Taranaki, leaving the organisation to scramble to find other ways to make up its ballooning shortfall.

And without the support from central government, it was up to the charity to find ways to fund its current workload, as well as meeting the increasing need coming through its doors. "That's a significant organisational challenge," Lamb said.

A LITTLE AND OFTEN GIVING CLUB

Monthly donations of $35 will contribute to providing meals for a patient for a day in Te Rangimarie Hospice.

Fortnightly donations of $40 will contribute to counselling sessions for patients and their families/whanau

Weekly donations of $25 will contribute to nursing visits to patients in their own homes.

Donations, small or large, will make a difference.

How I got the shot: The story behind a famous picture of the bomb- damaged Rainbow Warrior

"The Rainbow Warrior was bombed just before midnight on July 10, 1985 - and freelance photographer Rob Tucker was swiftly on the scene.

He was phoned in the wee hours by the Associated Press picture desk in London. "They said 'The Rainbow Warrior has been sunk in a wharf in the port, can you go and investigate?'"

Up-cycling

Have you heard about Chaddy's Charters' new up-cycled brand - 'Rescue ||| Taranaki'?

Chaddy's Charters are passionate about the environment and the community, so they have decided to buy secondhand plain shirts from our HospiceShops, and take them to local designers and printers to see how they can up-cycle them. They look great!

A great example of successful up-cycling, what is your idea?
